Local Volunteers Get Civil War Cannon

The Ohio 19th Volunteer Infantry regiment of Salem, a Civil War centennial group, now has a cannon of its own — at least for the duration of this year's 100th anniversary of the war between the states.

The cannon, installed at Grandview Cemetery in 1901, was loaned by Philip Triem Camp No. 43, Sons of Union Veterans, to be used by the Civil War buffs at tri-state meetings. It will be mounted on a wheeled platform.

Pictured at the cemetery when the cannon was removed from its pedestal were: (Standing l. to r.) Floyd Beck, Jim Knight, Paul Beck and John Beck of the 19th Volunteers; Carl Buraw, commander of Philip Triem camp; Clair Charlton of the Sons of Union Veterans; Lowell Brandt and Jerry Wolford, other members of the regiment. Kneeling in foreground are Robert Smith, Eddie Brandt and Tom Swetey.

The cannon, with the dates 1862-63 inscribed on it, was originally obtained from a U. S. arsenal by Trescott Post No. 10, Grand Army of the Republic, in 1901 and placed at Grandview Cemetery near the Civil War monument.

When rust weakened the supporting wheeled carriage it was removed in 1943 and mounted on a stone base. The cannon, which once fired three-inch balls, is held in place by four bolts.

Carl Buraw, whose father, William, served in the Union Army three years during the Civil War, is one of eight surviving members of Philip Triem Camp, Sons of Union Veterans. The group still meets every Friday evening in their downtown hall.

Lisbon Man In Critical Condition

9 Persons Injured In Road Mishaps

Nine persons were injured in eight mishaps on area highways early this morning and Friday, the State Patrol reported.

A two-car accident Friday at 11:20 p.m. on County Rd. 416, 1.9 miles south of Leetonia resulted in injuries to four persons.

They are:

Jesse E. Wilson, 53, of Lisbon, lacerations of both knees and chest injuries; Rondo Winters, 17, of Lisbon, a passenger in Wilson's auto, lacerations of the lip and bruised knees; Ronald L. Kyser, 23, of Columbiana, lacerations of the left elbow, and Larry Reed, 20, of Columbiana, a passenger in Kyser's vehicle bruised head.

The mishap occurred when Wilson's vehicle pulled out of a drive on the county road and collided with the Kyser auto, patrolmen said.

The injured were brought to Salem City Hospital where Wilson is in critical condition and Winters is in fairly good condition. Kyser and Reed were treated and released.

Wilson was cited for failure to yield the right of way, the Patrol said, and Kyser for having an expired operator's license.

Charles Fawcett, 21, of New Philadelphia failed to negotiate a curve on Rt. 39, just east of Rt. 16 4 near Wellsville today at 3 a.

m., causing his car to crash through a guard rail and strike an embankment.

He received lacerations of the lip and had a tooth knocked out. He was cited for reckless operation, the Patrol said.

Mrs. Arnold Buehler, 45, of Alliance is in fairly good condition at the Central Clinic after her car left Rt. 62 and struck a telephone pole in Damascus Friday at 9:50 p.m.

She suffered lacerations of the chin, right palm and thumb and right and left knees.

Gladys A. Bruner, 50, of Damascus suffered a whip lash injury of the back and contusions of the left hand in a mishap at 2:40 p.m. Friday on County Road 404, south of Westville.

Her auto and a flat bed truck, driven by Eldon L. Sanor, 28, of Beloit, side swiped, patrolmen said.

Sanor was cited for going left of center.

The injured woman was taken to Alliance City Hospital where she was treated and released. Later she became sick and was admitted to the Central Clinic where she is in fairly good condition.

Scout Council Gets Plaque

Howard Firestone (left) of Salem, president of the Columbiana County Council, Boy Scouts of America, and Atty. Francis H. Lang of East Liverpool pose with the Buckskin Award received from the national council in recognition of the county group's growth in 1961. Lang is vice-chairman of Region 4.

The Columbiana Council had the largest increase in membership of any other council in the Northeast Service Area, which includes northeast Ohio with the exception of Cleveland.

The council was runnerup in the entire region, which takes in most of Ohio, West Virginia and Kentucky, missing first place by only a few points. There are seven councils in the northeast area and 37 in the entire region.

Firestone said that the council's achievement was possible only because of the "hard work, devotion and cooperation of everyone interested in the scout movement."

Successor to Ribicoff Is Surprise Choice

Cleveland Mayor To Take Job After Senate Approval

HYANNIS PORT, Mass. (AP)—President Kennedy today named Anthony J. Celebrezze, mayor of Cleveland, Ohio, as the new secretary of health, education and welfare.

Kennedy's surprise announcement was read to newsmen by assistant White House press secretary Andrew J. Hatcher. Hatcher said Celebrezze is expected to assume the post as soon as he is confirmed by the Senate.

Celebrezze will succeed Abraham A. Ribicoff who resigned Thursday when he formally announced his candidacy for the Democratic nomination for the Senate from Connecticut.

The identity of Ribicoff's successor was one of the best kept secrets of the Kennedy administration.

Celebrezze's name had not figured in the speculation for the post. Many others had been mentioned, but informed sources, without giving any hint as to whom it would be, insisted the appointment would come as a surprise.

Celebrezze Grateful

In Cleveland, Celebrezze said in a statement:

"I am grateful for the confidence that President Kennedy has expressed in me. I shall do my best to merit this confidence. This new assignment presents a great challenge and a great opportunity to be of service to people. I shall always be grateful to the people of Cleveland for granting me the privilege of serving them as their mayor."

Celebrezze, 51, has been mayor of Cleveland since 1953.

Kennedy, in announcing the appointment, said Celebrezze "brings to my Cabinet a wealth of experience gained from having worked through the years with the problems of people, particularly in the areas of health, education and welfare."

"He therefore brings to this great department an intimate knowledge which will prove invaluable in making the department an effective instrument for the general welfare," Kennedy's statement said.

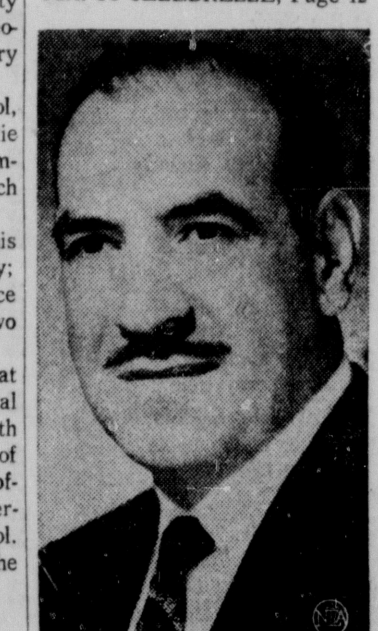

Celebrezze was born Sept. 4, 1910 at Nazi, Italy. Hatcher explained, however, that his parents who were natives of Italy, were naturalized U.S. citizens who were visiting their homeland at the time. This made him an American citizen automatically, Hatcher said.

Young, Lausche Pleased

Celebrezze, one of thirteen children, attended Cleveland public schools and John Carroll University. He then went to Ohio Northern University, Ada, Ohio, where he received his law degree in 1936. He was admitted to the bar in Ohio the same year.

In Washington, Sen. Stephen M. Young, D-Ohio, lauded Kennedy's

Antitrust Suit Filed Against Talent Agency

LOS ANGELES (AP)—The federal government, to the surprise of few, has filed an antitrust suit against MCA, Inc., the nation's largest talent agency and filmed television show producer.

The complaint accuses the firm of tying in its two businesses forcing producers to buy items they didn't want in order to obtain actors and programs that were in demand.

The government in filing the suit Friday also obtained a court order blocking MCA from divesting itself of any assets.

The 18-page complaint, submitted to U.S. District Court here seeks to strip MCA of its talent agency branch, MCA Artists, Ltd.

The company announced earlier this week that it would give up

Soviet 'Goof' Noted by Top U.S. Officials

WASHINGTON (AP)—Top U.S. officials are chortling over a king-sized Soviet goof which saw Russian workers spend a year painstakingly making an expensive machine part—which other workers then cut into scrap.

The blunder, by the Russians' own admission, wasted thousands of rubles.

The report, which slipped into the carefully controlled Russian press, first went unnoticed in the West. But then it was spotted by American experts who sift all available material for between-the-lines hints of conditions inside the Soviet Union.

The report was circulated among high-level U.S. authorities as part of a collection of such intelligence material.

As one source put it, the report published in Komsomolskaya Pravda shows "they also have their troubles"—although the Russians usually try to tell the world that things are going just great

Dems Convene In Connecticut

Ribicoff, Kowalski Vie for Senate Seat

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP)—The Democratic state convention picks its candidate for the U.S. Senate today after one of its rowdiest starts in years.

The question was not whether Abraham Ribicoff would win the nomination over Rep. Frank Kowalski, but whether Kowalski could get 20 per cent of the delegate vote and thus force a primary.

It was the Senate race between Ribicoff, the former welfare secretary who resigned Thursday, and the congressman-at-large that caused the outbreak at the opening session Friday night.

Supporters of Kowalski, demonstrating against seating arrangements, gathered in delegates' seats down front before the convention and delayed the start of proceedings.

They booed John Bailey, the state and national party chairman, time and again as he tried to quiet them. Eventually he threatened to call police.

A Kowalski leader, Al Gentile, interceded and spoke to the group as the demonstration continued. Eventually, the demonstrators moved to the galleries and the convention moved along, 40 minutes behind schedule.

Integration Move Planned By Rev. King

ALBANY, Ga. (AP)—A major thrust against segregation gained momentum today in this south Georgia city with the Rev. Martin Luther King Jr. the rallying force for sustained drives on three fronts.

The magnitude of the nonviolent offensive was evidenced Friday night as a growing number of Negro civil rights leaders at a mass rally urged a stepped-up economic boycott of white merchants, voter registration and possible nonviolent demonstrations.

Another rally was set for noon today as weary policemen were held on a 24-hour alert.

Three zealous youths, one of them white, were jailed after leaving the rally at which King and other speakers clearly indicated there would be no letup in

Economy In Algeria Bad, French Report

ALGIERS (AP)—Moslem and French officials and businessmen say the economy of the 10-day-old Algerian nation is nearly on the rocks and no one has any concrete plan for keeping it afloat.

"Confidence is gone," said one European banker. "Business activity is down to about one third of what it was six months ago, and it is still declining."

He added:

"The events of the past few days, the disputes between the leaders, the lawlessness and the administrative chaos—all this has made people lose heart. Many who left temporarily have decided not to come back and others who were determined to stay are now packing their bags."

All along the fashionable Rue Michelet and other streets of Algiers' European Quarter, three out of every four stores are closed. Faded notices on the iron shutters of most say "closed for

U.S. Officer Dies In Clash In S. Viet Nam

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP)—A U.S. Army officer was killed about 40 miles north of here today in a Communist ambush of battalion strength that crashed a large government convoy.

First reports said 17 government troops were killed with the American, 14 were wounded and 4 were missing.

A jeep was destroyed and two trucks were heavily damaged. There was no indication of Red casualties.

The name of the dead American was withheld pending notification of his family.

U.S. authorities reported the Viet Cong unit that carried out the ambush was under air observation and was being pursued by fighter planes. U.S. Army helicopters loaded with troops, and transport planes loaded with paratroopers.

JFK's Understanding Of Business Doubted

WASHINGTON (AP)—A top spokesman for the business community says he wonders if the Kennedy administration really understands what makes American business tick.

But the spokesman, President H. Ladd Plumley of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, also told newsmen that President Kennedy appears to be trying to improve relations between the White House and the businessman.

Plumley conferred with the President Friday then had lunch with newsmen. He told them: "I am not sure that the administration fully recognizes that this free enterprise system operates...on the decisions which are being made daily by thousands of individuals," rather than by government steering.

What bothers businessmen, Plumley said, is uncertainty. They want conditions "predictable and plottable so that they can plan their own moves."

He said businessmen are asking: If the economy is being steered by the government today,

Demand Follows Party Shakeup

Britain's Labor Party Leader Asks Election

LONDON (AP)—Prime Minister Macmillan's wholesale shake-up of his Cabinet brought new pressure from opposition leaders today for an immediate national election.

Labor party leader Hugh Gaitskell called Macmillan's firing of seven of the 21 Conservative ministers Friday night "A political massacre which can only be interpreted as a gigantic admission of failure."

"Instead of getting rid of his colleagues, the prime minister should resign and let the people elect a new government," Gaitskell added.

Liberal party leader Jo Grimond also called for a general election and declared: "After 12 years in office, it is too late for the Tories to try and put a new face on their administration."

Macmillan's Conservatives have a mandate to serve until the fall of 1964. The prime minister can call a general election any time before then, but he is not expected to do so before the fall of 1963.

Conservative candidates have taken a thrashing from opposition Laborites and resurgent Liberals in 12 recent special elections. By the infusion of new blood into the Cabinet, Macmillan hopes to restore the battered image of his government before it goes to the polls.

Brochado da Rocha overcame his first parliamentary hurdle Friday night when, after four days of uncertainty and bickering, the Chamber of Deputies approved his Cabinet selections.

The surprisingly large 139-63 vote put a tentative end to the nation's constitutional crisis, during which Brazil 7drifted for 11 days without a Cabinet amid spiraling inflation and violent food rioting.

But Brochado da Rocha's announced intention to seek broad powers from Parliament within five days was seen as a major challenge to the new government.

The conservative-dominated Parliament has been reluctant to

Estes Ruled Bankrupt by Federal Judge

EL PASO, Tex. (AP)—Billie Sol Estes, 37, the "boy wonder" who parlayed fertilizer tanks, grain storage and cotton allotments into a multimillion-dollar empire was declared bankrupt Friday.

Federal District Judge R. Ewing Thomason said no satisfactory plan had been submitted for continuing operation of Estes' assets under a receivership.

Estes' attorney, John Cofer of Austin, said he would appeal at once.

Earlier in the day, the Pecos, Tex., promoter pleaded innocent to federal charges that he and three associates had defrauded finance companies out of approximately $22 million by obtaining loans on anhydrous ammonia tanks which the government says never existed.

Estes was visibly surprised when his three associates pleaded guilty to five of the 29 counts.

Former Prisoner Of Soviets To Talk At Camp Meeting

John Noble, a Detroit native who spent almost 10 years in a Russian prison and then wrote a prize-winning book, "I Found God in Soviet Russia," about his experiences, will speak at the Sebring Holiness Camp Meeting Sunday July 22.

Rev. Owen Glassburn, pastor of the Alliance Friends Church, says Noble, who was released from the prison and slave labor camp in 1955, will speak at 2:30 and 7:45 at the 58th annual Sebring camp. The sessions begin Thursday and will conclude July 29.

Since he returned to the United States seven years ago, Noble has been alerting Americans to the dangers of Communism in public appearances throughout the nation and has dedicated his life to serving God and his country.

He received the 1959 Freedom Book Award for his volume telling of his tribulations behind the Iron Curtain.

July 26 will be Missionary Day at the camp with the Rev. Eldon Boggs of Japan and Rev. Ed Kilbourne of Korea as guests speakers.

Camp workers include Paul E. Uhrig and Rev. Ora D. Lovell, evangelists; Reverend Joe H. Shultz, song leader; Miss Janie Bradford, young people's evangelist; and Mrs. Edith Gallagher, children's worker.

The judge said the time Mann had been held in prison would be counted against the sentence. He was arrested in East Berlin last Jan. 22.

In similar cases, young Americans have been released before the actual expiration of the sentence.

Harvest time makes a man think.

The bread God gives us has to be cut, threshed, shipped, baked, wrapped and delivered before it ever reaches our mouths. And long before, it had to be sowed in a ploughed field, cultivated, irrigated, and fretted over a thousand times.

Lots of work in it for man. No gift wrapping with a ribbon around it.

But don't think we could get along without God! Leave out His part and there would be no harvest — no point in all our work.

So wheat inspires worship! And every Sunday in Church reminds us that we never labor alone . . . that our labors gain fruitfulness from God.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . . ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Tenting On the Old Camp Ground

A storm that started to blow up over the National Republican Citizens Committee has subsided, according to Rep. William E. Miller, R-N.Y., chairman of the Republican National Committee, and Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., chairman of the Republican senatorial campaign committee.

To round out the roster of Republicans involved in this threatened storm, Dwight D. Eisenhower must be mentioned. The National Republican Citizens Committee had been organized with his blessing, to the consternation of Sen. Goldwater.

It's the oldest story in partisan politics.

The best way to attract voters is to put as many faces on a party as possible, but the trick is to keep the faces pointed in the same direction. Mr. Eisenhower was propelled into party power by a Citizens for Eisenhower Committee, to the consternation of hard-core Republicans who wanted to nominate Robert A. Taft in 1952.

Wendell L. Wilkie was the beneficiary of a "citizens movement" that left the party regulars high and dry in 1940. Nelson A. Rockefeller went looking for "citizen" support in 1960 and, failing to find it, canceled his candidacy for the Republican nomination.

POLITICAL parties are not monolithic. They are not exclusive. They are undisciplined and organized so loosely they scarcely can claim to be organized at all. They literally are up for grabs, which is the merit of the two-party system. No faction can lock up or nail down a party permanently.

Unlike the Democratic party, which crowds factions as diverse as Southern reactionaries and labor into the same tent, Republicans always pitch separate tents. Their task then is to persuade leaders from each tent to come to uneasy terms with one another. It's never easy.

Mr. Eisenhower, who came into political eminence as a result of factionalism, is now in a position to run a faction of his own—the National Republican Citizens Committee.

Then there's Richard M. Nixon and . . . Well, that's why they call it the "great game of politics." In place of a ball, they kick the chairman of the national committee back and forth until he's limp—and that's what is happening to Rep. Miller, caught between the Eisenhowerites and the Goldwaterites, with the Rockefellerites still to be heard from and the Nixonites hoping for the best in California.

SEN. GOLDWATER is pretty much of a factionalist himself, as Gov. Rockefeller will be if he makes a try for the Republican nomination.

Then there's Richard M. Nixon and . . .

Well, that's why they call it the "great game of politics." In place of a ball, they kick the chairman of the national committee back and forth until he's limp—and that's what is happening to Rep. Miller, caught between the Eisenhowerites and the Goldwaterites, with the Rockefellerites still to be heard from and the Nixonites hoping for the best in California.

Keep the Creepers Away

If there had been no government heel-dragging, the Teletar communications satellite could have been put into orbit long ago.

The Bell Laboratories, which designed and built the satellite, dreaded the possibility of so much government delay the Soviet Union would be first again. The scientists who had worked so hard to put the United States out ahead in this vital race hated the possibility of losing by default. They were ready more than a year ago.

The race was vital, but not because of any of the things currently being talked about. It didn't really matter at the moment whether television programs can be relayed back and forth across the Atlantic or whether almost limitless possibilities of voice communication are going to be made available within a few years at the most.

What matters at the moment is jam-proof military communications—a technique that will make it possible for our government to stay in contact with its military forces and for them to stay in touch with one another.

Scarcely less important is interference-proof communication between nations. And scarcely less important than that is the possibility of easy transmission of new to all point of the earth. Isolation is being blasted out of existence.

It was important that the United States should be first in space satellite communications. It is important that the United States should make space satellite communications a demonstration of efficiency in private administration; that it should let American Telephone and Telegraph, which is willing to pay for development of a satellite communications system, go as far as private initiative can take it.

Private initiative is off to a flying start. It shouldn't be held back by the creeping socialists who would love to get their hooks into it and hold it back.

Something's Missing

There have been relatively few pictures taken at the Village Green fountain this summer. No prankster has dumped gold fish into the pond or added detergent for a sudsy show. The statue itself has attracted hardly a passing glance, simply because the water never has been turned out. The sprinklers won't work, is the excuse.

The Village Green at the downtown corner of State and Lincoln Ave. was the city's gift to itself to commemorate the community's sesquicentennial. The splashing fountain adds to the beauty of the setting and the park commission ought to see that it is fixed.

Some wives can be mightily sweet when they want to be or just when they want.

The new homes that resist heat and cold still can't do a thing about visiting relatives.

The Lisbon Strike

There are no outward indications that the two-week old strike at the H. K. Porter Company's Thomas Works in Lisbon is about to be settled but all Lisbon district people are hopeful that differences in the contract dispute soon can be resolved.

One hundred and forty workers are idle. They are going without pay and the company has given some indication it would like to sell the plant. No community, large or small, can stand a strike of long duration. Losses offset any gains seemingly made and an $800,000 annual payroll should be some inducement for clear thinking at the bargaining table.

Mayor Dean Stockman and a Lisbon citizens committee, with the aid of the Federal Mediation Service, have been striving for an amicable settlement of the strike. We hope that in the week that lies ahead labor and management will be able to come to terms on a new work contract that, perhaps, is only "a few right words" away from signing.

Twill In The Air

By Truman Twill

Steamship lines say getting there is half the fun, and there always will be people to buy the proposition. But if you must get there in a hurry, jet airplanes are the answer.

They eat up distance at 550-mile bites every four.

We boarded an Air France plane at New York International Airport at 8 p.m. on a Saturday night and reached Orly Field outside Paris a little after 2 a.m. Sunday, the same time we'd have been going to bed back home after watching a movie. The difference was that we were on the other side of the Atlantic, 3,600 miles from New York, and a new day was well under way in Paris.

These miraculous planes climb to 33,000 feet or more in a hurry and stay there, above the weather. It's like riding through space in an easy chair with pretty girls bringing you goodies from the refrigerator.

The plane had two clocks, one set for Paris time, one for the time where we were. Every time we flew into another time zone the second clock jumped an hour. When the two clocks coincided we had arrived in Paris. It's an interesting visual aid for understanding the miracle of high-speed flight.

Coming home, it was the other way around. We left London at 12:45 p.m. and were in New York at 3:20 p.m., except by that time it was 8:20 p.m. by the clocks we'd been living under for the last three weeks. And before we reached home and got to bed it was 5 a.m. London time, a long, day, even if we had covered more than 4,000 miles since it began.

Countries flying flag-line air service—and all of them are, except the United States—knock themselves out to make a good national impression. The French atmosphere on our Air France flight began at the airport, where English was turned into a mixture of French and French spoken with an English accent.

As Frenchmen speak it, their language is so little like the lingo we learn in school in the guise of French it behooves all of us to stick to English, which is now the universal language anyway. Everybody understands it, even if they can't pronounce it.

Both on the French plane going over and the Air India plane coming back, young women and young men were selling their country's good will by their own good looks and good manners. It is a remarkable setup the stewardesses and stewards represent and it gets remarkable results. It's as if that Bell Telephone "Voice With a Smile" had been brought to life.

When a pretty girl with a French lisp is fussing over you, or a sandaled beauty in a sari is giving you maharajah treatment, as it was on Air India coming home, international friendship seems "de rigueur," as we'd like to be able to say in French.

Two more things about flying—the zip trip across the English Channel, once the nightmare of travelers who got seasick, and the helicopters that operate between airports. It takes only an hour to go from Paris to London Airport by French Caravelle, the slick ship with the jet engines on the fuselage. It takes only 16 minutes to fly from Idlewild to Newark Airport—by helicopter—a long and costly trip by taxicab or bus. Helicopters now have jet engines, too.

Danger in the air?

You quit worrying about it when you realize what never crosses your mind back home when you read about aviation accidents—that huge planes are climbing up off runways every few seconds 24 hours a day and you're safer in one of them for 3,500 miles than you'd be in your own mortgage-mobile for 350.

A Mere Matter of Life and Death

Mr. John Bailey, chairman of the Democratic National Committee was invited by Victor Riesel to be a guest columnist. In the following article, Mr. Bailey tells what he thinks of the Republican party.

By JOHN BAILEY

A friend of mine, discussing the elections this fall, had this to say about a Republican victory:

"I suppose it wouldn't be too bad if someone did a face lifting job on them. But have you ever tried to lift an elephant's face?"

The Republicans need a face-lifting because their chief distinction is a similarity to the leader of the French revolution who said:

"There go my people. I must find out where they are going, so I can lead them."

Unfortunately, for the Republicans, the people are already following Democratic leadership, because the Democrats lead where the people want to go.

Why do we have such a rapport with the people?

Because we feel that a President and a Congress are not elected to be suspicious of the needs of its people.

GOP Needs Facelifting

That they are not elected to insure that there will be no changes, no improvements.

THAT THEY ARE not elected for the purpose of telling those in need that they should look somewhere else for help.

But—that a President and a Congress are elected so that they might serve the people, not fear them.

A Democratic Congress, led by President Kennedy, has already pulled this country out of a recession.

Unemployment has dropped for six straight months. And, you will remember, unemployment benefits were extended temporarily when this administration took office.

The Area Redevelopment program has been established as a basis for building for the future. The minimum wage has been increased to $1.25.

We have a pilot program for job retraining for workers automated out of their jobs.

These are some of the accomplishments of the combination of Kennedy leadership and a Democratic Congress.

But there have been times when Republican obstructionism has blocked our programs.

THE FAILURE of the bill to create a Department of Urban Affairs is an example. This bill would have centralized in one agency all the problems that now threaten our cities and metropolitan areas.

And now on the President's health care issue, the Republicans have refused to take a stand, saying the bill does too much and too little. And they say this at the same time.

If they want more included in the bill, then we will be happy to oblige them.

But if they don't want the bill, then they should stop posing as the protectors of our senior citizens.

You remember a few months ago—during the steel crisis—that the Republicans waited 10 days until the price rise had been rescinded before they made a statement.

And now they criticize the President for seeking what they call "un-needed authority."

What that means is that they don't want a President who does his job and who fights for the consumer and the small people.

The Republicans don't want this because they don't understand this.

They have a narrow point of view, and so cannot understand our broad vision on national issues and issues that benefit the people.

BUT THE PRESIDENT still needs more Democratic members of Congress to help him with his legislative program.

There still is pending a bill that would offer job training for the millions of young people who will descend on the labor market in the next few years.

And I am sure, the Urbans bill will be coming up again.

Also, should the Republicans obstruct the health care issue, then, as sure as the tide comes in, this bill will be submitted to the next session of Congress.

Now, the Republicans have just issued a policy statement in which they criticized us for doing everything wrong—because it wasn't the Republican way.

But all they had to offer were harmless statements, that, as the Washington Post said, were "fence sitting on some issues . . . detailed on none."

The paper noted that the Republican candidates were left free "to fill in the blanks."

THIS HAS BEEN the Republican history: fill in the blanks so they can come up with whatever answer suits them at the moment.

The Democratic party, though, is not so content. In fact, we are restless, because we do not accept all conditions with a fatalistic "but that's the way it's always been" attitude.

We don't claim to be able to save the world.

We don't claim to have found a panacea.

But we do claim that we do not wait until a problem has overwhelmed us before confronting it.

And that's quite a difference from the Republican theory that says:

"For goodness sake don't rock the boat. And while you're at it, please keep it anchored to the shore."

Franklin's Fund

By RUSSELL LANDSTROM

Ben Left $4,445 To Philadelphia, Boston

Benjamin Franklin was about as wise and far-seeing as they come. But even for him the crystal ball was cloudy when it came to calling the shots for 200 years to come.

Just consider his will which left $4,445 each to Philadelphia and Boston.

Over the years the Philadelphia fund grew to nearly $2 million, but most of the money has been used in ways Franklin couldn't imagine, as the country outgrew his conditions.

Franklin, who died in 1790, stipulated the money was "to be let out upon interest at 5 per cent per annum to such young married artificers, under the age of 25 years, as have served an apprenticeship in the said town, and faithfully fulfilled the duties required in their indentures."

Up to $300 would be lent for as long as 15 years, with two co-signers required.

THE FUND WAS to continue for 100 years. Franklin thought it would amount to well over a half million dollars by then. With that figure in mind, he directed that about $125,000 be continued as a loan fund for another 100 years, and the rest be used for public works and welfare projects.

The terms of the will applied especially to Philadelphia. Franklin's adopted home. The provision for Boston, his birthplace, was put into a codicil.

As everyone knows, Franklin came to this old town seeking his fortune. Walking up Market Street from the waterfront, with his bread tucked under his arm, he did not make the most impressive figure. He wondered what was in store for a young printer with precious few pence to his name.

Someone staked him, and Franklin never forgot.

The city of Philadelphia handled the Franklin Fund until 1889, when its administration passed to the board of directors of city trusts, newly created by the state legislature.

The fund then totaled $40,000 compared with Franklin's reckoning of $238,000. Franklin's much higher estimates were on the assumption that much of the fund would always be lent on loans, earning interest. Instead, there has been a lack of applications.

AT THE END OF the first 100 years the board of trusts had $90,000 instead of Franklin's hoped for half million plus. It split the money two ways, allotting about $70,000 for public works and putting aside the rest to keep the loan pool going. The policy was continued of suitably investing whatever money was not out on loans.

The building, or public works fund, expanded much faster. By 1930 it had grown to over $1.5 million, and the money was applied toward building the Franklin Institute's big scientific center near the heart of the city. The Franklin loan plan found itself sidetracked with the coming of the machine age in industry, profound social changes and an availability of loans beyond belief in Franklin's time.

Four times the board of trusts asked the court to liberalize Franklin's terms. First, the age limit was raised to 37. Then the loan limit was advanced to $500; the interest rate was cut to 4 per cent; and the court ruled that loans could be made on well-secured mortgages on real estate in the city. In 1939, the maximum was raised to $3,000, and the court said a loan might be made to any qualified worker, male or female, married or unmarried. In years later the limit was upped to $6,000.

On the first of this year the fund came to $314,883.5, with 0 loans totaling $88,000 outstanding.

Franklin's will has 28 years to go. At the end of that time the money in the fund will be, in his words, "divided between the inhabitants of Philadelphia and the government of Pennsylvania."

G. C. Pritchard, board secretary, said this means the money will be spent on public welfare projects.

The Boston trust remains in force although no loans have been made in 76 years. Massachusetts courts refused to change the conditions because of the ancient law of the inviolability of trusts. Most of the Boston fund is reported to be invested in an insurance company. The Massachusetts supreme court recently released Franklin funds for small loans to medical students.

Zig Zagging Egypt

By H. A. R. PHILBY

CAIRO The economic agreement brought back from Moscow in June by Dr. Abdul Munim Kaissuni, the Egyptian minister of economy, marks another step in President Nasser's wily zig-zag course between East and West.

In recent weeks the President has come under heavy fire from several Arab quarters from supposedly leaning too far towards the West American aid to Egypt has been stepped up, and there is a possibility that Britain, West Germany and Italy will soon be contributing more substantially to Egypt's economic development.

His bitterest enemy is Akram Haurani, once chief architect of Syria's union with Egypt. He has accused the President of having promised the Americans to modify his policy towards Israel in return for United States aid.

The charge is doubly absurd, as the U.S. government would not dream of trying to exact such a promise and President Nasser would in no circumstances give it. But the bolt seems to have struck home somewhere on the target, and Dr. Kaissuni's trip to Moscow was designed to blunt criticism.

Political considerations apart, there also were sound economic reasons for the venture.

What may be termed the first phase of Soviet Aid to Egypt is within sight, and it was deemed desirable to embark on the second phase in a planned and orderly manner.

The first aid agreement was signed in 1958 and provided for the supply of Soviet goods, to the value of 175 million, spread over four years.

Acting with considerable caution, by the end of 1961, they had only taken up about two-thirds of the credits offered. A protocol signed last January provided for the allocation of the remaining money.

The new agreement makes no mention of credits, and it seems that it aims at straightforward barter arrangements, by the terms of which Egypt will supply cotton, rice, oil, textiles, fruits and other products in return for Soviet manufactures.

The total volume of trade envisaged is $172 million annually, for three years.

This new agreement by no means exhausts the subject of exchanges between Egypt and the Soviet Union. A group of Egyptians engineers is now in Russia studying various methods of implementing the second stage of the high dam at Aswan.

The first stage consisted largely of digging the diversion channels, and cost $100 million. The second, involving the construction of the coffer dam, is to cost $269 million.

There also is the question of the supply of Soviet arms to Egypt. If it is true, as the Egyptian government repeatedly claims, that the Egyptian army is much stronger than ever before, the expenditure on arms alone must be truly formidable. Few independent experts will even hazard a guess at the sums involved.

If the new agreement is implemented (and there seems no reason to suppose the contrary), it looks as if the Soviet Union will be Egypt's best customer for the sixth year running.

THE COMMUNIST bloc as a whole has been taking between 45 per cent and 52 per cent of all Egyptian exports since 1957. But these figures are based on Egyptian customs returns which early do not include the import of arms, and may well exclude at least a proportion of goods and services devoted to the construction of the high dam.

There has been some disappointment in Egypt at the quality of goods from the Communist bloc. There is clearly a keen desire in Egypt to keep open lines to the West, and to develop commercial relations with both America and Europe.

Politically, Egyptian relations with the Soviet Union are better than correct, though less than cordial and confiding. Although no strings are explicitly attached to Soviet aid, nobody in Egypt is fool enough to suppose that the Russians are disinterested.

Most of the more serious issues dividing East and West, such as Berlin and disarmament, look remote from Cairo. So long as the Russians stay aloof from Egyptian politics and stick to business, President Nasser will not seek to pick a quarrel.

Blind Date Attempts To Steal Landscape Contractor 'Blind'

HOLLYWOOD, Calif. (AP) — shortie coats. Reginald A. Wike was excited as he entered the Hollywood bowling alley and looked about for his blind date.

He wore a grey suit, as he'd promised. She was to have on a yellow shortie coat.

"What if there are two girls with yellow shortie coats?" he'd asked anxiously when she telephoned him. It was good he'd thought of that, for there were, indeed, two girls with yellow shortie coats.

He was glad he'd suggested she carry a red rose as he searched for the girl who'd inserted this ad in the personal column of a metropolitan newspaper.

"Attractive brunette, 5 ft. 6 1/2 in., 135 lbs., affectionate, would like to meet nice man with property."

Reginald a well-to-do landscape contractor, had liked that. He'd written to the box number, she'd called him up, and now—

He spotted her. She was wearing the coat. She had the rose. And he found her very attractive, indeed.

They hit it off at once. The disparity in their ages was a trifle in Hollywood—he 53 and she 39. Her name was Lucille—Miss Lucille Hackenberger.

They took in a movie. She told him he was so distinguished looking she thought he was a doctor.

"I felt so flattered and bashful I just smiled," Reginald told a friend.

She proved to be affectionate, too. She kissed him that night—something of a surprise.

"I ordinarily don't kiss a person on the first date," explained Reginald.

That memorable blind date was on Dec. 14, 1953. They saw a lot of each other from then on. On New Year's Day, 1954, he proposed. She accepted. They were two of the happiest lovers in the world.

But something always kept interfering with their wedding. She kept having to put it off. Meanwhile, he was glad to be able to help his fiancée with her finances.

Seven long years elapsed. He felt this was too long an engagement. He became impatient. Finally, he convinced himself she didn't love him at all—didn't even intend marrying him. It was late 1960. He talked to a lawyer.

Superior Judge Eugene P. Fay ruled Friday that Reginald, now 62, had it doped correctly, that she was after his property. The judge ordered Miss Hackenberger, now 48, to give back $75,000 worth of real estate he'd deeded to her.

But the judge said there was nothing he could do about cash gifts the disappointed swain said he'd made over the years—not enough evidence, the judge held. Reginald said they came to about $30,000.

Hints From Heloise

By HELOISE CRUSE

DEAR HELOISE: I started to clean my venetian blinds the other day and discovered I had no commercial cleaner. So I put some soap in hot water in the dishpan and a little kerosene. Honestly, I have never had such wonderful results. I have never had such clean blinds with so much ease and lack of elbow grease. Thanks for making this housework easier.

MARTHA FARRELL

DEAR HELOISE: Your reader who suggested putting an old bath towel in the oven, pouring ammonia over it and letting it soak overnight deserves a bouquet. No irritating fumes, and no skin irritation either. My towel was clean after rinsing, too.

I had been lining my hydrators in the refrigerator with aluminum foil but the janitorial service woman told me to line them with paper towels. Now we are able to keep lemons indefinitely. Also the tomatoes do not mold with paper toweling.

M. N. R.

DEAR HELOISE: I reheat my leftover mashed potatoes by putting them in the top of a double boiler. I cook them from 20 to 30 minutes, then rewhip them. They are just as nice as fresh-cooked potatoes.

I use my rubber spatula to separate bacon slices. I find this does not tear the meat. Slip spatula between slices of bacon.

When using raisins in a recipe, I soak the raisins in hot water for about three minutes, remove from water and shake off excess dampness by using my flour sifter. This eliminates handling of the fruit.

ALICE BASYE

DEAR HELOISE: Never waste your mismatched nylon stockings anymore; save them. I put them all in a pot of water with a teaspoon of salt and bring to a boil. Boil a few minutes. Turn off heat and let water cool.

Rinse as usual. You will find that all of the stockings will be the same color when dry! Unbelievable? Try it!

At 25, Don Drysdale is by far the youngest major leaguer involved in a race with time.

For Warren Spahn, Stan Musial, Early Wynn all past 40-year mark, the struggle with time is an old, old thing involving the question of how many seasons may be left in their aging frames.

But for the 6-foot-6 Los Angeles Dodger right-hander the question centers around days and weeks. Are there enough weeks left in the season to become the first 30-game winner since Dizzy Dean posted a 30-7 mark for St. Louis in 1934?

Maybe. Maybe not.

Makes Bid To Win 30 Games

Drysdale, who has never won 20, has 16 victories after beating the New York Mets 5-4 Friday night, and is making a determined try at becoming only the second National Leaguer to win 30 since Grover Cleveland Alexander in 1917.

He has a good chance to make it. But it'll be close.

With 11 weeks remaining and the Dodgers 71 games from the end of the expanded NL schedule, big Don can expect about 20 more starts, at the maximum. To hit the magic mark, he must win 14. Figuring a couple of games in which he does not get the decision, and a loss or two, it'll be close.

The swift, strong hurler spread out seven hits and got the benefit of Ron Fairly's ninth inning, tie-breaking homer in beating the Mets, pushing his record to 16-4 with 13 complete games in 21 starts.

The victory enabled the Dodgers to expand their National League lead to 1 1/2 games over second-place San Francisco, which lost to Philadelphia and Dennis Bennett 3-2.

Cal Koonce, 21-year-old Chicago right-hander, blanked Cincinnati 1-0 on a one-hitter, St. Louis beat Milwaukee and Spahn 6-0, and Pittsburgh defeated Houston 4-0.

Between Columbiana and East Palestine.

Bennett, a 22-year-old rookie left-hander, threw a 5-hitter as the Phillies knocked San Francisco 1 1/2 games off the pace. He suffered his only damage on a homer to Chuck Hiller in the fifth and three ninth-inning singles.

Koonce (8-2) allowed only a clean single to Don Blasingame in the fourth in his one-hit masterpiece against Cincinnati. The young Cub right-hander gave up only one walk and struck out four in beating Reds ace Bob Purkey (14-3), who lost on an unearned run in the sixth.

Bucs Defense Ad Victory

Pittsburgh turned in four double plays in support of Bob Friend (9-9), who gave up eight hits in his well-supported shutout of Houston. The Pirates got two runs, all they needed, on Bill Virdon's double, a single and stolen base by Dick Skinner and Roberto Clemente's single in the first.

St. Louis right-hander Bob Gibson, who had defeated Milwaukee only twice in 10 lifetime decisions, tossed a 3-hitter against the Braves in running his season record to 11-6. A 3-run triple by Charlie James and Gene Oliver's homer provided all the support he needed. Spahn (8-11) took the loss.

With 11 weeks remaining and the Dodgers 71 games from the end of the expanded NL schedule, big Don can expect about 20 more starts, at the maximum. To hit the magic mark, he must win 14. Figuring a couple of games in which he does not get the decision, and a loss or two, it'll be close.

OUR BOARDING HOUSE

A word from THERON at the Old Country Store

I had a very successful gentleman and his wife come into my store the other day. I didn't recognize him at first because it was the third time I saw him in my life. He told me he reads my articles every day and he liked my stand on stamps and premiums. He said he liked to see anyone who has nerve enough to stand up and fight for something he thinks is right.

In this world today a person has to fight hard to help preserve what he thinks is going to be good for his children and theirs. There are too many people who are only interested in their own welfare today.

C. W. McNEAL, RD 1, Columbiana, O.

Legionnaires Hear Reports Of Delegates to Boys State

EAST PALESTINE — Buckeye Boys State delegates Larry DeLong of Beaver Local High School and Jack Alpern of East Liverpool High School made reports Friday evening to Columbiana County Council, American Legion, at George F. McBane Post 31.

Larry was sponsored by Glenmoor Post 736 and Jack by East Liverpool Post 374. Introduced by Walter L. McCoy of Lisbon, county Boys State chairman, they were enthusiastic over lessons offered in government operation at the annual Legion-sponsored convention of high school juniors. Jack was one of the candidates nominated for governor on the Federalist Party ticket.

Virginia Mast of Lisbon Post 275 announced that the Veterans Administration will issue presidential memorial certificates to next of kin of honorably discharged deceased members of the armed forces.

She urged the various posts to submit their Memorial Day expenses to the county commissioners before the July 30 deadline. Each post is eligible for $50 toward its expenses. Applications must be accompanied by paid bills.

Harmon Zeppernick of Salem Post 56 said mutual aid agreements in the county Civil Defense program have been sent to all mayors and township trustees. Al Rutecki of Lisbon, county CD director, will call a meeting in August to learn how many communities will sign the agreement.

Commander Albert Hayes of Columbiana Post 290 reported progress in plans for organization of a county Legion bowling league this fall.

Council's annual picnic for legionnaires, auxiliary members and children will be held at 1 p. m. Sunday, Aug. 5, at Copeland Lake on Route 16 4, 1.5 miles south of Columbiana. James Cregar of East Liverpool Post 374, second vice commander, said council will furnish the lunch and supervise games and contests for the children.

Bert Keck of Glenmoor Post 736, first vice commander, reported the county has 2,738 members—just eight short of quota.

The 10th District golf tournament is scheduled for Sunday, Aug. 5, at Riceland Golf Course in Wayne County.

Chester Stellar's farm at Creston will be the site of the annual fall conference Sunday, Sept. 9. There will be a business meeting and round and square dancing in the barn.

Council's next meeting will be Friday, Aug. 10, at Hanover Post 684.

for them.

The Russian publication told of the building of a large cylinder for one of the most powerful hydraulic presses in the Soviet Union.

This cylinder, weighing many tons, was sent to the Novosibirsk turbo-generator plant in Siberia for precision work that took almost a year.

The next step was to ship the vital part back to a heavy press plant, presumably for assembly into what was believed to be a 30,000-ton forging press.

Here occurred the blunder. Instead of shipping the huge cylinder to the fabricating plant, somebody goofed and sent it to a warehouse—where it was cut up for scrap.

paid vacation."

The owners, all Europeans, agreed among themselves to close down during the independence celebrations and take a vacation in France.

Many of them expected the celebrations to turn into large-scale race riots and looting rampages. These did not occur—except for a street battle costing 104 lives in Oran on July 5.

Yet the Europeans are leaving the country in a steady stream despite desperate Moslem appeals to stay and help build the new nation.

The Moslem leaders know they cannot run the nation at present without the Europeans, who have a near-monopoly of technical skills and economic power. Some of the Europeans are moving away in a spirit of resentment, as if they really wanted to sabotage a state which they fought to the last.

nist attack consisted of two companies from the Vietnamese airborne brigade and a command group.

The ambush was on a National Route 13 in a heavily forested area considered under Communist control. About 280 government troops were in the convoy. They were on mopping up operations in the area.

The pattern of ambush was identical to one June 16 on the same road in which an armored convoy was raided and two U.S. officers were killed.

surrender any of its powers to the executive branch headed by President Joao Goulart, whose Brazilian Labor Party is in the minority.

During the governmental crisis, Parliament rejected one of Goulart's nominations for prime minister and another quit after only 36 hours in office before the stalemate was broken with the approval of Brochado da Rocha, a political unknown, and his predominantly nonpolitical cabinet.

After the endorsement of his cabinet, Brochado da Rocha and his ministers huddled with Goulart until almost midnight, then went to Parliament to thank the deputies.

In an official announcement, the new prime minister, a mild-mannered university professor and former provincial official, vowed to use all of his energy to meet the nation's troubles.

"With the vote of confidence by the Chamber of Deputies, I do not fail to lose sight of the grave and heavy responsibility which we assume before the nation and our people so punished by suffering," he said.

Brochado da Rocha is taking over the administration of a country plagued by ever increasing inflation, growing discontent over the lack of effective land reform and an unmanageable tax system.

the integration activities.

William Hanson, 23, a Cincinnati white youth, told the crowd that he was working in a Negro voter registration drive. Then he walked from the Mt. Zion Baptist Church with the avowed intention of being jailed, saying: "It's time for me to go back."

Hanson and two Albany Negroes, Luther Woodall, 17, and a juvenile whose name was withheld under state law, went to City Hall and asked to be jailed. When police refused, the three sat on the City Hall steps until officers arrested them for loitering and investigation.

Booher Given New Prison Sentence

Mahoning County Common Pleas Judge Forrest J. Cavalier has sentenced James Booher, 26, of Poland to a 3 to 20-year sentence in the Ohio Penitentiary on charges of rape resulting from a March entry of a model home near Westville on Rt. 62.

Booher was ordered sent to Lima State Hospital as a psychopathic offender and if he is restored to mental health before the maximum sentence expires, he will be returned to prison jurisdiction.

On May 14, he was sentenced to serve 10 to 25 years for armed robbery, also as a result of the Westville crime.

The two Mahoning County sentences will be served concurrently with a 10-25 year sentence levied by Columbiana County Common Pleas Judge Joel Sharp on a charge of armed robbery filed by authorities there.

Booher pleaded guilty to charges in both counties.

the agency, which handles top entertainment stars including Gregory Peck, Ingrid Bergman and Jack Benny.

The government charged that MCA's acquisition last June 18 of Decca Records Inc. and its subsidiary, Universal Pictures Inc., violated the Celler-Kefauver Antitrust Act. It asked the court to divest MCA of those firms.

The civil suit was announced in Washington, D.C., by Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy. He signed the complaint, along with Lee Loevinger, assistant attorney general in charge of the antitrust division, and U.S. Atty. Frances C. Whelan of Los Angeles.

The complaint also charged violation of Sherman Antitrust Act provisions against conspiracy to restrain trade and monopolize business.

MCA officials declined comment until they study the suit.

Mishaps

of Rt. 625 in Youngstown resulted in injuries to two persons.

Vito Marzano, 41, of Struthers received lacerations of both knees when his auto struck the rear of a vehicle operated by Delores Nespeca, 33, of Youngstown who was stopped for a traffic light. She suffered back and neck injuries.

Both drivers were taken to South Side Hospital in Youngstown, the Patrol reported.

At 3:15 a.m. today an auto driven by Dennis H. Bailey, 17, of RD 1, North Lima, went out of control on County Rd. 423, just west of Columbiana, and struck an embankment on the right side of the road.

The mishap occurred when Kyser began a left turn as the other driver was attempting to pass.

She was cited by the patrol for failure to sound her horn when passing and Kyser for failure to signal a turn.

Some catcalls and hoots still came from the galleries and the floor as Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana started the keynote address.

When the demonstrators began to call for Kowalski, the congressman appeared on the platform, waved and said a few words. Apparently he left before Bailey's rebuttal began in earnest.

Bailey is a firm supporter of Ribicoff, 52-year-old former governor who quit President Kennedy's cabinet to seek the Senate nomination. Rep. Horace Seely for the seat of retiring Sen. Pres. Brown Jr. is the GOP nominee codd Bush, a Republican.

Kowalski, 54, a retired Army officer, has angrily denounced the political technique of both Bailey and Ribicoff in what has been the hottest party row among Connecticut Democrats since Bailey became state chairman 16 years ago.

The decision on the Senate race was not expected before mid-afternoon.

The convention first had to endorse Gov. John N. Dempsey for election—to oppose Republican John Alsup—and pick a state ticket. Dempsey who had no opposition, stepped up from lieutenant governor when Ribicoff resigned to become the first member of the Kennedy cabinet.

stances of the present," Plumley commented.

However, Plumley also said that Kennedy "seems to be taking repeated steps to encourage a dialogue and understanding between business and the President."

He said relation are improving after reaching "a pretty low ebb" during the steel price increase crisis of last April.

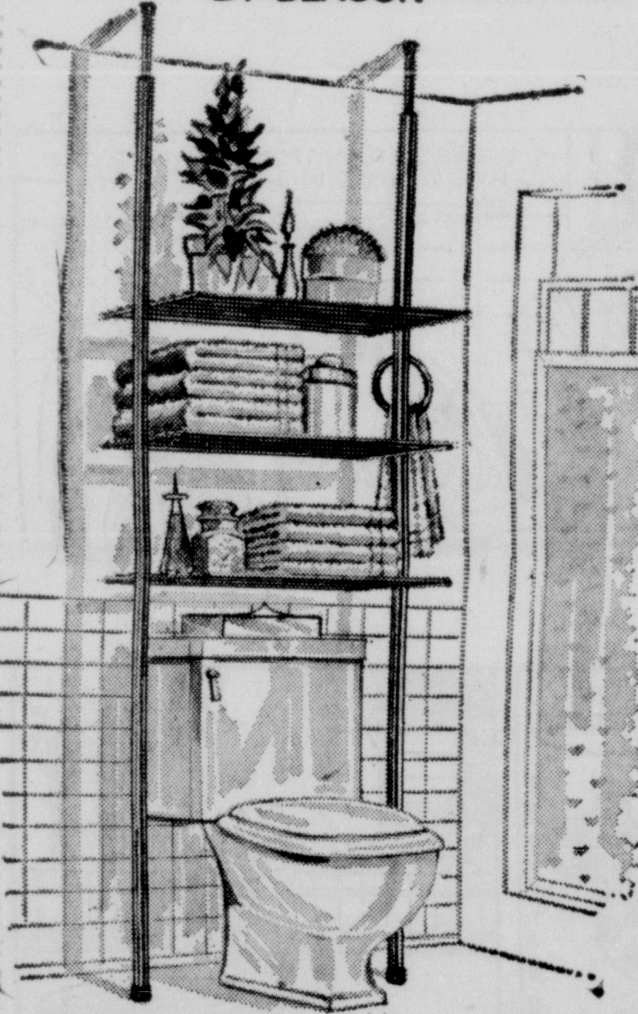

He cited as an example the new depreciation guidelines announced by the Treasury this week, a move expected to save business and industry $1.5 billion in taxes next year.

Plumley said at the luncheon that he feels part of the misunderstanding between Kennedy and business stemmed from a mutual breakdown in communications between them.

The Chamber president said the purpose of his meeting was to make a progress report on the Chamber's study of ways to cut the U.S. deficit in international payments. He wouldn't disclose what he reported.
